About the Chairs

Lawrence G. Cetrulo's primary practice areas are (1) industry-wide toxic tort litigation defense; (2) business litigation; (3) insurance and re-insurance complex coverage litigation; (4) environmental litigation; and (5) the defense of auto design liability litigation. Mr. Cetrulo has over 30 years of experience in all aspects of the national coordination, administration, preparation, and the trial and appeal of toxic tort cases, involving substances such as asbestos, lead paint, and benzene. Mr. Cetrulo serves as National and Regional Trial Counsel and Coordinating Counsel of toxic tort litigation for Fortune 500 companies, and as Defendants' Liaison Counsel in the Massachusetts and Rhode Island asbestos litigation. In addition to his extensive trial experience, Mr. Cetrulo has written extensively on toxic tort issues, authoring the three-volume treatise, Toxic Torts Litigation Guide, published by Thompson/West. Mr. Cetrulo frequently speaks, both locally and nationally. Mr. Cetrulo graduated from Harvard College (B.A., with Honors in American Government, 1971); Harvard University Graduate School of Education (Ed.M., 1972); and, Northeastern University School of Law (J.D., 1975).

Steven Kazan, Founding, senior and managing principal; admitted to New York (since 1967-) and California (since 1970-) Bars; U.S. Courts of Appeals, Third, Fifth and Ninth Circuits; California and U.S. District Courts, Northern and Eastern Districts of California; U.S. Supreme Court; Harvard University (LL.B., 1966); Brandeis University (A.B., 1963.) He filed his first case on behalf of an asbestos victim in 1974, and since then has represented thousands of injured workers and their family members in court cases. He has also represented their interests through his service on creditors' committees for asbestos disease victims in the reorganizations of asbestos companies that sought to avoid their responsibility under the bankruptcy laws, including Amatec, Carey Canada, Celotex and H.K. Porter, and was class counsel in the Fibreboard Global Settlement. Mr. Kazan served on the Asbestos Victims Creditor's Committee in the Chapter XI bankruptcy reorganization of Babcock and Wilcox, and also serves as counsel to asbestos victim members of the Creditors' Committees in the Chapter XI reorganization of Armstrong World Industries (AWI), W.R. Grace, NARCO, Federal Mogul, Kaiser Aluminum, Global Technologies (GIT), ACandS, ARTRA, Owens Corning, Plibrico, T&N, U.S. Gypsum, Combustion Engineering, the Muralo Company, Congoleum, Flintkote Company, Special Electric, and ABB Lummus Global, and T H Agriculture & Nutrition. He is a member of the Plaintiffs' Steering Committee for Asbestos Multi-District Litigation (MDL) for cases filed in Federal Courts throughout the United States, and a member of the Trustees' Advisory Committee to the Celotex Asbestos Compensation Trust. Recently, there has been much attention directed at the mounting asbestos litigation, corporate bankruptcies resulting from their asbestos liabilities, and possible legislative remedies to these problems. He often talks to reporters so they can better understand these issues as they write their articles, which provide more detailed information on this complex topic.
